DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 1 and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

The phrase "Ti is precipitated" does not support by [0028] as relied on by applicants.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Art Unit: 1742

Claims 1, 10, 12, and 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over USP 4599119 to Ikushima et al in view of Nagarjuna et al or acknowledged prior art admission.

Ikushima discloses the features including the claimed Ti-Cu alloy (col. 1, lines 35-58), grain size (col. 1, lines 60-63), hardness, tensile properties, and bending properties (Table 4, first 4 samples) except for the claimed electrical conductivity. Ikushima in col. 1, lines 15-18 discloses age-hardened Cu-Ti alloy has excellent electrical conductivity but does not disclose a numerical range of the electrical conductivity. Nagarjuna (abstract) and acknowledged prior art admission ([0008]) disclose electrical conductivity 25% and at least 10% IACS, respectively. Therefore, as shown by Nagarjuna that age-hardened Cu-Ti alloy would have electrical conductivity up to 25%. And electrical conductive materials as disclosed by cited references is required to be at least 10% IACS (See acknowledged prior art admission [0008]).

With respect to the final recrystallization annealing step that the invention defined in a product-by-process claim is a product, not a process. Nonetheless, Ikushima discloses Ti is precipitated (col. 2, lines 39-46).

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed February 9, 2007 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicants' argument with respect to Nagarjuna in page 9 of instant remarks is noted. But, there is no factual evidence that claimed electrical conductivity and strength cannot be obtained in other heat treatment conditions.

Conclusion

Applicant is reminded that when amendment and/or revision is required, applicant should therefore provide a concise explanation and support with page and line number in the specification for any amendments made to the disclosure. See 37 C.F.R. Part §41.37 (c)(1)(v).
